Resume

Quelic Berga got a Master in Interfaces Design at the University of Lincoln (UK) and a Degree in AV and Multimedia at the ERAM – University of Girona (Spain). He completed a number of courses on Art History at the University of Barcelona. He is actually starting his PhD on interaction design and data visualization.

He is an assistant professor at UOC (Universitat Oberta de Catalunya) where he has devised and developed new courses on Interactive Design, Video, Interactive Media and Virtual Reality. Besides, he teaches a course on Creativity in ERAM (Universitat de Girona). He has given talks and workshops in a number of national and international institutions concerning art, technology and society.

He has been awarded prizes on digital art, and some of his works have been shown in art centres and festivals in Spain, France and Singapore. Amongst them, Arts santa Monica (Barcelona), Sala de Arte Joven (Madrid), VAD Festival (Girona), Ingràvid (Figueres), and the National Academy of Fine Arts, NAFA (Singapore).

His works use new technologies to generate interactive artifacts which establish a vivid dialogue with the viewer. The new digital means are being used in order to rethink humanity and present-day society. Most of his works -however beautiful in its surface- are there to challenge preconceptions about technology and a reminder of how it needs to adjust its potential to human measure.
